Every friend of Deerfield has at some time asked himself - and many have asked me: "What would happen to Deerfield if something should happen to Frank Boyden?"

The answer to this friendly question can now, I think, be given in two sentences:

(1) The men listed above have character, knowledge, and combined experience adequate to meet any situation.

(2) So far as I can judge, it's going to be a long time before anything happens to Mr. Boyden. He is as tough as a piece of Plymouth Rock. He is up at six every morning, and has dictated his mail by seven. Whenever he has an appointment with me in New York it is always for eleven o'clock, and, having left Deerfield at seven, he arrives fresh and rosy as the dawn.

Sincerely yours,

Bruce Barton

P.S. Frank has a fine piece of news to announce. We'll send it to you in a letter in about a month.
